

College of Education, Humanities & Social Sciences

Research > Research and Scholarly Activities

Research and Scholarly Activities

The College of Education, Social Sciences and Humanities faculty members are constantly engaged in research and scholarship activities that contribute to the knowledge base in social sciences, teaching and learning within their field of specialization. Faculty research interests encompass four major specializations, including linguistics, curriculum and instruction, special education, sociology and psychology.

View Page